

New York Injury Times

A monthly newsletter published by The Law Office of Gerald M. Oginski, LLC

January 06

www.oginski-law.com

Gerry Oginski, Trial Lawyer

Secrets of Plastic Surgery

“Celebrity Lindsay Lohan now has cleavage!” screams the tabloids. “J. Lo. had a butt job,” remarks another supermarket tabloid. “Botox enhanced lips do wonders” for your romance, Just look at Angelina Jolie,” promises another headline.

What we don't often hear about are the plastic surgery blunders that happen more frequently than you think. Plastic surgery options are numerous; Breast reduction, Rhinoplasty: Botox (lips), Liposuction, Tummy tuck, and on it goes.

If plastic surgery is such a glamorous way to enhance one's physical appearance, why do medical malpractice lawyers get so many calls from plastic surgery patients?

Here's the reason...

SECRET # 1:

Many people (mostly women) who have plastic surgery are generally unhappy with some aspect of their physical appearance. Their desire to have their eyelids done at the same time their breasts are enlarged is enticing; especially when their husband is ogling the girls in Maxim magazine on the newsstand.

SECRET #2:

When a patient elects to voluntarily have plastic surgery and physically alter their body, they make a choice to accept the results- assuming of course that the treatment they receive is appropriate. But what happens when the results are disappointing or not as they expected? This leads us to Secret #3.

SECRET #3:

These patients who expected to look like the glamorous models in the fashion magazines and the men's magazines realize that their expectations are unfulfilled. They've often paid a lot of money- usually cash. They've been pampered in the doctor's beautiful plastic surgery office and expect the finest result in the land.

...Continued p. 2

News

p. 4

Come visit

www.oginski-law.com

Over 2,000 unique visitors each month! I guarantee there's something there for you!

Gerry's New short story... page 2
Read where Bin Laden's hiding in our Next Issue.

ERROR: stackunderflow
OFFENDING COMMAND: ~

STACK: